

When Jesus was about to leave the earth, he gathered his disciples together for one last time to speak to them. The world was about to change dramatically for the disciples: Jesus would no longer be with them and they would be the ones required to carry on his work. There, on a mountainside, Jesus outlined to them exactly how he wanted them to act in the future. Matthew captured Jesus words at the very end of his Gospel, in what has become known as The Great Commission (Matthew 28:18-20). These are the last words that the risen Jesus spoke to his assembled disciples and as Christians we have to take them very seriously. However, I believe that it is one of those parts of the Bible where familiarity has bred, if not contempt, then complacency. Jesus words feel so familiar and their call on our lives seems so obvious, that we sometimes dont stop to ask whether we have really understood what is being said.
